Through this partnership, Hunter's continues its commitment to empowering the youth, offering avenues for self-expression and achievement within the music industry," says Nontsikelelo Gumede, Hunter's brand manager.

Hunter's is keenly attuned to the aspirations of the youth. Through the Hunter's X JCH initiative, we endeavour to resonate with the desires and dreams of upcoming artists.

"More than just a collaboration, the Hunter's X JCH initiative is a movement dedicated to empowering South African musicians. By providing access to invaluable industry insights, mentorship opportunities, and exposure to masterclasses, we seek to nurture and uplift the next generation of musical talent," commented Tresor.

The competition will be rolled out across three phases:

"At Hunter's, we champion the spirit of Uk'Fosta – the unwavering determination to pursue one's passion despite obstacles. Through this partnership, we celebrate individuals who embody Uk'Fosta, recognising that superstars don't always start off super," added Gumede.

The top two finalists of the Hunter's X JCH campaign will stand to win an extraordinary prize package, including a full-day one-on-one mentorship session, PR interviews, studio equipment to the value of R25,000, and an exclusive opportunity to perform as a paid artist at chosen Hunter's events in 2024.
